anean in the past few days a large number of valuable hostile ships have been sunk. Among them an Italian transport and two armed steamers of 3000 and 5000 tons. In addition the following were sunk: An Italian ocean-going steamship of 3200 tons; the French steamship Moetaux of 3200 tons and the French sailing ship Aphrodite bound for Italy with 600 tons of iron. German papers state that the success of the submarine raid is probably much larger.

FOOD UPRISINGS KEEP POLICE BUSY

New York, Feb. 21.—Threatening a repetition of the Paris bread riots of 1791, several hundred women began gathering at City Hall today for the second food demonstration. Not in mass, but in small groups, they came straggling into the plaza and took their places in front of the steps. Mayor Mitchell sent out word that he would meet three of the women, Mrs. Ida Harris, president of the East Side Mothers' Vigilance Association, was chosen as chairman of the representatives. Mrs. Harris said she would present an ultimatum to the mayor demanding that he take steps at once for an appropriation of a million dollars for the purchase of food at cost, to be sold to the housewives on Saturday.

Mrs. Harris said that thousands of wives and mothers will assemble at city hall so that the city officials may hear the walls of the people.

Sporadic uprising against food prices kept the police busy today in the East Side tenement district.

Mothers carrying babies in arms wandered about the streets searching for food bargains and joining little bands at the corners where agitators called for action.

Sewerage logged children pelted the passing vendors with debris from the street. A few courageous push cart men put in an appearance at the Hester street market. Hardly had they set up their wares when a band of determined women swept down on them and put the owners to flight under the fire of their own produce.

Agitators urged the wives to throw oil over the goods of all produce merchants. Demands were made that the city be forced to buy food at cost to sell to the starving people.

In the meantime the police were stationed at all points to maintain order and city officers were considering all possible means to prevent trouble.

LOOK FOR ANOTHER OFFENSE MOVE

Today Anniversary of the Start of Great Verdun Battle.

Paris, Feb. 21.—Today is the first anniversary of the opening of the German offensive at Verdun, a battle which ranks with the allied offensives on the Somme as the most terrific in history. All the Paris newspapers today printed long articles lauding the valor of the French troops who checked the Germans.

It was the opinion of the military critics that the Germans would seize this date to start another offense.

Boston, Feb. 21.—The Massachusetts high cost of living commission made its report to Governor McCall today, and among its recommendations was a minority report by Frances S. Tyrell which declared an embargo upon the munitions of war would not be unneutral if its object is self protection, neither would an embargo be unneutral.

The following plans are suggested in the majority report of the commission to help cut the increasing cost. A state budget plan and state supervision of local dairies in order to bring down the increasing cost of government.

Plan to increase production, popularize fish for food purposes; railway freight extension over state; substitution of milk for higher priced food like meat and eggs; co-operative organization to lessen getting food from railroad terminals to the home; the appointment by the governor of a committee to enlighten the public in the matter of food economics, etc.

TRAWLERS TO BE FITTED AS MINE SWEEPERS

Plans for Action by all Branches of Navy for Boston Harbor Defense Made at Conference at Navy Yard Yesterday

Boston, Feb. 20.—High officials of the army and navy held a three-hour conference at the Charlestown navy yard today concerning defense preparations for Boston harbor and the sea-coast in this vicinity.

The conference was held in the office of Commandant William R. Rush of the yard, and among those present were Brig.-Gen. Hodges, U. S. A., commander of the eastern artillery division, with headquarters on Governors Island, New York; Capt. Rush and Col. Ridgeway and staff, in command of the coast defenses of Boston harbor. Gen. Hodges came from New York especially to attend the conference, arriving by train early today, and the Boston army officers went to the navy yard from Fort Warren on a government tug. The details of the conference were not made public.

Capt. John B. Coyle, chief engineer of the eastern division coast guard service, with office in Boston, visited the navy yard this morning, conferring with Capt. Rush and other officers. Capt. Coyle is the officer who inspected for the government the hull and engines of the interned German liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie and has sent his report to Washington. It is understood, however, that his business at the navy yard today did not pertain to that ship, but that he went there to confer on the general plans for the co-operation of the coast guard with the navy in the event of hostilities.

Systematic arrangements are being made by naval officers here whereby a large number of merchant ships of all descriptions will be taken over by the navy in case of war and put to use as supply ships, mine layers, scouts, etc. The latest development in this line is a plan through which a large number of trawlers will be immediately put into service in event of war, as mine sweepers.

The various branches of the naval reserve, meantime, are busy. New names are being added daily, to the list of those volunteering to take part in the work of the speed power yachts and other fast power boats to be used as submarine chasers. The first meeting of the civilians' naval cruise candidates was held last evening. This year the men will take a course of drills, lectures and other instruction at the navy yard, beginning now and continuing until the time of the cruise.

on they could be given recess appointments and be presented for confirmation later.

The cabinet as such, quite contrary to widespread opinion, is not reorganized by the constitution. Its members are appointed under the broad terms providing for public officers who serve during the pleasure of the President and by the statutes creating the executive departments. Therefore they require no re-appointment and no new confirmation.

The news that President Wilson might abandon the special senate session caused officialdom to gasp until it refreshed its memory and looked up the constitution and laws. It was then found that the President was doing no more than breaking a precedent for which he has set a pace since coming into office.

An Inside Bath Makes You Look and Feel Fresh

Says a glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast keeps illness away.

This excellent, common-sense health measure being adopted by millions.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

San Antonio, Texas, Feb. 20.—A funeral service of military simplicity in which regulars at Fort Sam Houston, national guardsmen at Camp Wilson and thousands of civilians from San Antonio joined, was held this afternoon for the late Major General Frederick Funston, commander of the southern department who died suddenly last night.

On House Bill No. 50, a bill introduced by Col. John G. Crawford of Manchester, an act to repeal the direct primary law the committee presented divided report. A majority of the committee reported that it was inexpedient to legislate and a minority of the committee that the bill ought to pass.

Invited to Visit Portsmouth Friday
Senator Page reminded the members of the senate that they and all the officers of the senate, as well as their wives, were invited to visit Portsmouth on Friday next, for the purpose of its inspecting a bridge in that city, and said that they would also be entertained by an excursion to the navy yard, where they will be given an opportunity to inspect a new submarine and would also be provided with a luncheon.

Thursday Will be Working Day

Representative Abbott stated in the house that Washington's Birthday Thursday would not be considered a working day. Representative Hoyt of Hanover objected to the motion. He said that he believed in paying his dues respects to the memory of Washington, but that he thought that if Washington could be communicated with he would say "Go along about your business." "We are here for business and we should attend to what the state sent us here for," said Mr. Hoyt.

Representative Abbott said that if the speaker desired to make Thursday a working day he would willingly attend upon the session of the house for this purpose.

The resolution was then voted down and Thursday will be made a regular working day.

Hearing on Bible in Public Schools
A hearing was held before the committee on education of the house with reference to the question of the Bible in the public schools. It was an interesting session and among those appearing before the committee were Representatives Bartlett, Peterson and Novell of Manchester. The committee in an executive session appointed Lewis of Amherst and Chaffin of Manchester and Emerson of Hanover, a committee to look into the legislature of other states upon this subject with authority to re-draft the bill.

Called Meeting of the Delegation
Representative Fairbanks of ward 5 of Manchester, chairman of the Manchester legislative delegation, called a meeting of the representatives from his city to be held immediately after the adjournment of the house tomorrow morning, for the purpose of considering the remaining bills in the hands of the delegation which have not been acted upon.

Received Note From President
The senate, through its clerk, Earl Gordon, received a letter from President Wilson acknowledging the vote of the senate, which was unanimous in supporting the stand which he has taken with reference to foreign relations with Germany.

May Use House for Labor Lecture
The house voted to grant the request of the labor commissioner for the use of the house of representatives in order to listen to an address on "Factory Inspection," by Lewis T. Bryant, commissioner of labor for the state of New Jersey.

Court Settles the Pension Questions
The house of representatives received a report from the supreme court on three questions submitted to it with reference to the granting of pensions. The court ruled that no old age pension would be constitutional and therefore could not be granted. In reference to pension for services rendered, the decision is that such pensions may be granted from year to year, that they must be for service.

Concord, Feb. 20.—The senate today killed the bill relating to changing the law in regard to restaurants having booths, curtilains and screens. The bill came up at its special order at 11:01 a. m. and was called for by Senator Baker of Hillsborough. Senator Martin of Concord moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed. Senator Parrell of Manchester seconded the motion. This was put to a vote, ten senators voting in the affirmative and 10 in the negative and the motion was lost.

Senator Threlkeld of Nashua said that the bill as it stood before the senate was in its original draft and had been amended. He supposed an amendment was to have been offered which would take from the bill some of its objectionable features, but this had not been done, and as the bill stands today it would unquestionably work a hardship upon the mountain houses. He did not believe that all of the senators who had been in favor of the bill heretofore were in favor of it in its original draft. Representatives of the N. H. Hotels association had been before the committee in opposition to it, saying that it would work a great hardship upon the summer hotels. He said the real purpose of the bill, it was apparent, was to hit the Chinese restaurants, but in its present form it would hit many others, and was, in his opinion, not a good bill.

Senator Page of Portsmouth did not believe the bill a just measure, and it was his understanding that it was to have been amended, and that the senate would be called upon to vote upon it in its original form. Senator Collins of Danville said that the bill had been tossed back and forth, and he believed the senators ought to have a better understanding of it. He said it had been brought out that it would work great hardships upon many in the restaurant business, and he was not prepared to vote for it.

the committee had done the best that it could for the entire state and asked that the bill stand as it had passed.

Representative Connor of Manchester said that at least 50 per cent of the members of the house did not care to hunt and the same was true of the entire state he believed to change this last majority, $1.00 because they liked to fish and did not care to hunt, he did not believe the right thing to do.

Representative Lowe of Landaff reported the bill saying that he was present when it passed and that anybody who had their eyes and ears open knew what was taking place. He said that there were hunters for every fish that was propagated in the state and he did not believe that a $1.00 license fee for fishing and hunting both combined would prove a burden to anybody. He said that any person with red blood in his veins or who was any real sportsman would willingly pay the $1.00 much as a fee in the bill, he asked why the people who were now backing this bill did not come before the committee and make their bills known at that time.

Representative Lee of Concord said that two years ago all that he heard for several ways was "fish, fish, fish." He believed that the bill should be returned to the committee for the purpose of amendment in justice to all. Representative Dimmock of Sandown endorsed the motion that the bill be recommitted to the committee.

Representative Page of Gilmanton favored the return of the bill to the committee. Representative Buntin of Manchester moved the previous question, which was seconded by Gallagher of Keene. The house then voted to recommit the bill to the committee.

Concord, Feb. 20.—The senate today killed the bill relating to changing the law in regard to restaurants having booths, curtilains and screens. The bill came up at its special order at 11:01 a. m. and was called for by Senator Baker of Hillsborough. Senator Martin of Concord moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed. Senator Parrell of Manchester seconded the motion. This was put to a vote, ten senators voting in the affirmative and 10 in the negative and the motion was lost.

Senator Threlkeld of Nashua said that the bill as it stood before the senate was in its original draft and had been amended. He supposed an amendment was to have been offered which would take from the bill some of its objectionable features, but this had not been done, and as the bill stands today it would unquestionably work a hardship upon the mountain houses. He did not believe that all of the senators who had been in favor of the bill heretofore were in favor of it in its original draft. Representatives of the N. H. Hotels association had been before the committee in opposition to it, saying that it would work a great hardship upon the summer hotels. He said the real purpose of the bill, it was apparent, was to hit the Chinese restaurants, but in its present form it would hit many others, and was, in his opinion, not a good bill.

Senator Page of Portsmouth did not believe the bill a just measure, and it was his understanding that it was to have been amended, and that the senate would be called upon to vote upon it in its original form. Senator Collins of Danville said that the bill had been tossed back and forth, and he believed the senators ought to have a better understanding of it. He said it had been brought out that it would work great hardships upon many in the restaurant business, and he was not prepared to vote for it.

Senator Leighton of Dover said he was not personally interested in the bill, and showed that his restaurants had not suffered in any respect from competition with other restaurants. He said the bill had been handed him for introduction, and he did not care whether the bill passed or not. Senator Martin moved that the bill be placed upon its third reading and expressed the hope that the third reading would not be granted. A vote was then taken and the decision was perfectly unanimous against further consideration of the measure.

Save your hair! Keep it looking charming and beautiful. You will say this was the best 25 cents you ever spent.

the bill as it was originally presented. If a proper amendment were offered, he might support it.

Senator Martin of Concord said that the intent of the bill was very clear, that it was unbecoming for a vicious measure. He said that if he entered a restaurant with his wife, he would prefer to seek the seclusion of a booth; or if he should go to such a place with any person he would prefer seclusion, where they might talk freely and not be subjected to inspection of everybody about the premises.

Senator Baker of Hillsborough said that he understood when the bill had come before the senate that it was to be amended so it would only call for the removal of curtilains, and he supposed that an amendment of this sort was to be submitted by the senators from Districts 18 and 19. Senators Shea and Belanger of Manchester, Senator Shea said that it was practically understood that the senator from district 19 and senator from district 18 were to get together and submit such an amendment as the senator from district 18 had referred to, but he had been unable to confer with the senator from district 19, and personally was of the opinion that there was sufficient law in existence already to enable authorities of both cities and towns to take care of the restaurant situation.

Senator Leighton of Dover said he was not personally interested in the bill, and showed that his restaurants had not suffered in any respect from competition with other restaurants. He said the bill had been handed him for introduction, and he did not care whether the bill passed or not. Senator Martin moved that the bill be placed upon its third reading and expressed the hope that the third reading would not be granted. A vote was then taken and the decision was perfectly unanimous against further consideration of the measure.

CIVILIAN RIFLEMEN WILL MEET TODAY

MAY ORGANIZE STATE ASSOCIATION WHEN THEY MEET AT MANCHESTER CITY HALL
THIS MORNING.

Manchester, Feb. 20.—An important meeting of the civilian riflemen of the state is scheduled for 11 o'clock this morning at the city hall in Manchester, the purpose being to organize a state association. The delegates from out of town will be the guests of the Manchester Rifle and Pistol club, an especially live local organization. The state rifle clubs are all supposed to be connected with the national organization, under the auspices of which inter-city tournaments are annually conducted.

There are between twelve and fifteen civilian rifle clubs in New Hampshire, under the following names, situated in the following places: Bristol, Concord, two in Hanover, West Stewartstown, Goffstown, South Lyndeborough, Manchester, Berlin, Portsmouth, Raymond, Reed's Ferry, Claremont, and presumably one in Nashua—perhaps two—though no word has yet been received from the Second City.

It appears that two years ago the New Hampshire legislature appropriated $1,000 for the expenses of a civilian team to take part in the National shoot at Jacksonville, but there was

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

When Solon, the Greek law-giver whose name has become synonymous with legislative wisdom, had given Athens relief from the repressive Draconic laws—the laws "written in blood"—he was asked:

"Are your laws the best that can be devised?"

"No," said that practical philosopher; "but they are the best the Athenians can bear."

There are no individuals or organizations in New Hampshire that argue or contend that local option has solved all the abuses that result from over-indulgence in intoxicants. These are organizations and individuals who rightly contend that local option has brought relief from the lawless conditions that were the outcome of prohibition control.

If the belief was not general that local option has been distinctly beneficial to the state, citizens of the state believe in its application, takes from the Anti-Saloon League any moral right to impugn the motives or principles of its defenders.

Just a year ago this coming March, the electorate of Vermont by an overwhelming majority, defeated a referendum to re-establish "prohibition" and discarded a local option law which, like the local option law of New Hampshire, had accomplished wonders in protecting the communities of the state from the evils of prohibition. Conditions in New Hampshire and Vermont were and are similar. Both states had witnessed an illegal business decline. Because of this indulgence, communities in which a majority sentiment was against sale either legal or illegal, were helpless because of the tolerance permitted in liberal cities. The substitution of local option for the tolerance permitted in liberal cities and the frequently expressed sentiment of the voters left no alternative to the strict enforcement of the law on the part of the law enforcing officials.

When the attempt was made in Vermont a year ago to again withdraw this protection from the no-license towns, and to again re-establish "prohibition," hundreds of the leading citizens united in a campaign of protest. The result of the endeavor is history. The majorities against prohibition.

The President of the Vermont Defense Organization was Hon. James M. Tyler, of Brattleboro, known as the "Grand Old Man of Vermont." A Supreme Court Judge and a Prohibitionist in practice, other officials were former Governors, Bank Presidents, Railroad Presidents, Leading Attorneys, all of whom believed local option right in principle and effective in application.

Brattleboro, the home of the Proponent of the Prohibitory Measure, gave a majority of 543 against prohibition and at the same election voted a majority of 468 Against License. The opinions of some of the leading men of Vermont on this question is of interest, inasmuch as they so heartily endorse the sentiment of hundreds of citizens of New Hampshire.

MONTPELIER, VT., Feb. 19, 1916.

"I am opposed to the prohibition bill because I believe the present law allows an adequate protection of public sentiment on the liquor question and that the result of the present law will be a more satisfactory situation than the one which the prohibition bill would create. I believe the law is working very satisfactorily and should not be changed."

Former State Auditor and President National Life Insurance Company.

ST. JOHNSBURY, VT., Feb. 19, 1916.

"I am heartily in sympathy with the present law and shall regard it as a calamity if changed to prohibition. I saw the working of the old law and nothing could make me want to see the old candidates re-established. I sincerely hope that we will not go back to the blacklisting and to enforce the old law, appeared to suddenly become opponent after a year or two in office."

J. M. ALLEN.

LYNDENVILLE, VT., Feb. 18, 1916.

"I am unhesitatingly opposed to the principle of prohibition. It has never been produced and I do not think it ever can. I believe that the drink will gradually succumb to sane education. I believe also that most, if not all, the evils of the liquor traffic can be lessened, and almost entirely eradicated by whatever laws are really intelligent and just."

A Silly Argument.

A Boston lawyer in a public address told his audience the other day that the income tax is a tax on thrift and should be abolished. He argues that a tax should be placed on expenditures in order to check wastefulness. He claimed that it is of little consequence who controls property, the essential question being who uses it. He said most of the money of the wealthy is used in ways that furnish employment for working people, and that they are the ones who really get the benefit of it. The speaker cited a few very wealthy persons who "give their all to the poor, because they invest their money so that it provides wages for workers."

Possibly the lawyer who made this plea for the exemption of incomes from taxation believed what he said, but the probability is that very few of his hearers did. His argument was by no means new or original. It was advanced many years ago by the crank publisher of a small paper whose motto practically was, "Whatever is wrong." At that time the income tax had not been dreamed of, but the farmers were struggling for a living and the paper pointed out that where a man improved his land and buildings his tax was increased, while the man who let his farm run down was taxed less, thus virtually placing, as the Boston lawyer said, a tax on thrift.

The tax question attracts much attention, and properly so, for it is one of the utmost importance. There are various schemes for shifting the tax burden from one set of shoulders to another, the famous single tax idea being one of them, but with none of these propositions is this paper in sympathy. It believes, and has more than once expressed its belief, that taxes should be levied upon property in whatever form it may exist, save that which by law is exempt from taxation. For the encouragement of thrift the law very wisely exempts savings banks deposits from taxation, and of this no one complains. But to exempt incomes from taxation under the pretense of encouraging thrift would be the baldest kind of a farce.

What the country needs more than anything else in connection with taxation is an effort to reduce it, but there is no prospect of anything in that line. The drift is entirely in the other direction, but, whether taxes be high or low, they should be paid by those who have the property. It is true that through large investments workmen secure employment, but it is to be noticed that dividends also cut something of a figure and that industry in this country is yet a long way from being a philanthropy.

The railroads of the country are ready to stand by the president in case of emergency, many of them having offered to place their organizations at the disposal of the government the moment necessity arises. The course of the business men of the country at this anxious time must be very cheering and strengthening to the head of the nation. And the common people are just as loyal and ready to act as are the heads of the great business concerns of the country.

The death of General Funston removes another great American. He was our most efficient general and his death will cause the deepest of regrets throughout the land. Major Cole remarked at Manchester on Tuesday morning: "To pass General Funston in review and to catch his eye was an inspiration and a thrill. He was a perfectly wonderful man and inspired every man under him."

Not all are yet convinced that it is time to do away with capital punishment. Governor McCall of Massachusetts strongly urges it, but the legislature has given its advocates "leave to withdraw." It might be well now to start a movement for the abolition of the pardon of murderers.

Out in Colorado the farmers are complaining that their use of the telephone for business purposes is greatly interfered with by women who use the lines for gossiping. But is this abuse confined to Colorado, and are farmers the only sufferers?

The Boy Scouts are getting ready to render service in cases of war. They will not bear arms, but will make themselves useful in many ways, as they are abundantly able to do. The nation has reason to be proud of its valiant army of Boy Scouts.

Don't get panicky, but with food riots in New York, potatoes $3.33 per bushel and sugar selling at 22 cents per pound in some cities, it must be a pleasure even in Germany.

Potatoes are reported to be selling in Maine at $6 and $6.25 a barrel at wholesale. Perhaps with a few more fires the price might be squeezed up another notch.

If War Should Come—
Funston: A Real Soldier
(From the Boston Traveler)

If Funston's military record depended in any large degree on the Mexican campaign it could be dismissed in a line. But the Mexican campaign was not his, and for it he was not responsible. He was never a watchful waiter, but he obeyed orders, and to the President himself must be given all the credit due to anybody for our remarkable Mexican adventure.

Funston achieved distinction and even glory in the days, not so many years ago, when watchful waiting was not looked upon with approval, when the leader who did something before the other fellow could think of doing it was the man who counted, and when notes had not become generally popular as instruments for prolonging indefinitely an international disagreement.

As a soldier of fortune before he became a soldier of his country Funston schooled himself undoubtedly for his spectacular success when given military responsibility and opportunity. Dull and drab seems his later career, but whatever he was to do—even to the doing of nothing—he did it as it should have been done. There cannot be too many men of the Funston type in an army that is to be used for the purposes to which armies hitherto have been devoted.

Funston.

(From the Boston Transcript)
Little Fred Funston, the Port-Smouth reporter; son of old Fophorn Funston, giant member of Congress from one of the tumbleweed districts of Kansas (it was his mother who was little, and they do say that Fred, at eighteen, wrote the speeches that his father thundered in Congress); turning his hand as a youth to everything, railroading, botanical journeying, reporting, a crusading city editor—only a boy, at that, but undaunted by corrupt local politicians with guns and dauntless them; Klondike, indomitable sub-Arctic explorer; of filibustering to Cuba at thirty, enlisting as a private in Garcia's army, and soon turning up as commander of the insurgent artillery, and doing unheard-of feats with his shot to pieces, home again; such was the adventurous beginning of the brave and competent American major general who died yesterday at San Antonio.

Funston had his first opportunity as a soldier for his own country, in the command of the Twentieth Kansas Volunteer Infantry in the Philippine insurrection. The story there is well known. First the brilliant feat in crossing the Rio Grande at Calumpit, which won a key fight and made him a brigadier general of volunteers, then the famous pursuit of Aguinaldo and his capture by a dark ruse, which won for him a scathing satire of "defence" by Mark Twain in the North American Review, but also, which was more to the point, won a brigadier's generalship in the regular army. This little adventurer a general in the regular army! West Point could not breathe for a month. But Funston made good San Francisco, and the test of the command there after the earthquake, proved that he was not merely a man of audacity—that he had brains and discom behind the audacity; a combination to win the world. The matter was clinched by his admirable service at Vera Cruz—a task for which he was wisely selected, against opposition, by Secretary Garrison, and in which Funston's civil and newspaper experience, and his broad knowledge of human nature, as well as his intimate acquaintance with the Latin American mind and character, enabled him to achieve a great success as the administrator of a conquered city. No Mexican wanted him to go. It was a victory of peace with the weapons of war.

In the recent Border trouble Funston was an obedient soldier only. Impeded by a thousand obstacles, his information and advice unheeded, he marked time in a vain watch on the Rio Grande. A good soldier, a clever man, he had it in him to be a real leader in great national deeds. If he had chosen to intrude into politics, he would have gone very far. If he had lived, he might have stood his country in splendid stead in dangerous days to come. An outward end for such a man, to sink to his death in his hotel, choking and rotting in a luxurious routine which was foreign to his nature! A strange, unapprehending country we have! But Funston's countrymen will at least be glad that he had the opportunity to serve them brilliantly in so many ways and to leave behind a heroic record. Not his superiors, not a muddling government, but Funston's own energies, the slowness of his own heart, made him what he was, and built up this story for him. He was all American, and America will listen to his story long and long.

Of More Value Than Hope
(From the Louisville Courier-Journal)

There is hope, always. Hope springs eternal in the human breast. But is there at present, balm in Gilead? Are there potatoes?

A Rotten Apple Deal
(From the New York Herald)

On removing a few layers of apples from a barrel a New England grocer found this note, written by the producer: "I got $2.50 for this barrel of apples. How much did you have to pay?" As the grocer had paid $6.50, it is almost as easy to guess what the ultimate consumer had to pay as what he had to say.

Let's Have a Real One
(From the Chicago Herald)

The Federal Trade Commission is about to start an investigation of the rise in food prices. It will ask the President to approve an appropriation of $400,000 for that purpose. It proposes to cover every side of the food situation.

Good! Let us hope at last we are going to have a real investigation. The country has confidence in the Federal Trade Commission. Now let's have the facts. Let's go to the bottom—to the fundamentals—and really learn all that can be learned about the subject.

The problem is legal and economic. The question of whether there are combinations in restraint of trade must be decided. That has heretofore attracted the main attention. Now it's time to go more into the economic part—and go into it thoroughly. Are the people being compelled to pay too much for what they buy? Nobody can answer that until he can say with reasonable approximation what it costs to produce those things.

In some fields the trade commission will find plenty of data. The packers, for instance, can tell it exactly what it costs them to turn out their product. Government attention has encouraged accurate cost accounting in their case. But these fields are limited. In the big gest fields of all the work will have to be done from the ground up. There isn't a farmer in Illinois who knows what it costs him to put his product on the market today. There isn't one manufacturer in ten who has an accurate idea of what it costs him to run his business.

Let the trade commission start literally "from the ground up." Let it start with the farmer and find what production of everything from eggs to wheat and cattle means in terms of money and labor expenditure. He doesn't know, and nobody else knows. Then let it follow the product to consumption. Many people assume high prices don't start until they reach some large organization. From the economic standpoint they are just as liable to start at the beginning as anywhere else. Prices cannot be permanently below the cost of production under any circumstances.

The country is in the mood for an investigation that will be long and deep and thorough. It is tired of these continued flurries about high prices that get nothing except possibly a politician into Congress or some other job or into the newspapers. It has had its fill of half-baked remedies that spring from attention to only one half of the great problem. Let's have an investigation that will enable the country to see it steadily and see it whole. It would be cheap at $400,000 or $4,000,000.

"Nibbling" Will Not Win

(From the New York World)

General Maurice reports that since Jan. 1 the British in France have occupied a strip of land that figures out about four and a half square miles. That would clear thirty-six square miles in a year, and all French soil about A. D. 2160. Trench-raiding will not end the war.

Prepare for Destructiveness

(From the Manufacturers Record)

If we are to credit Germany with the same careful advance preparation in forcing a break of diplomatic relations as in all her other war moves, we may safely count upon her being ready with submarines to enter American ports and seek to destroy shipping and shipyards before we really appreciate that she is ready to hit. She will try to hit first, and hit hard.

Our people should, in advance, look for such a situation and thus not get into a fright and panic when the blow comes, as we fully believe it will come.

We should fully realize in advance the strength and strategy of Germany and know that when once war has started, if war comes, it will be long and desperate.

It would be foolish to minimize this situation.

The best way to meet it is to look for it and prepare as best we may for it.

When We Broke With Italy

(From the Indianapolis Star)

Severance of diplomatic relations does not necessarily mean war, as seems to be the prevailing opinion in this country. The erroneous statement has been made many times, since we handed passports to Count von Bernstorff, that such action invariably has terminated in armed conflict.

Our diplomatic relations with Italy were severed during President Harrison's term, yet no war resulted.

Members of the Mafia an Italian secret society, had perpetrated a series of murders in New Orleans. The activity of Chief of Police David C. Hennessy drew upon him the enmity of the conspirators and he was murdered.

The jury acquitted six of the nine who had been arrested in connection with the conspiracy and disagreed as to the other three. A mob then stormed the jail and lynched those who had been acquitted along with some others suspected.

Italy demanded reparation and the punishment of those guilty of being implicated in the hangings. Our Government expressed regret, but explained that the state in which the crimes were committed had jurisdiction and Washington could not guarantee to punish those accused of taking part in the lynching.

CURRENT OPINION

Overeating and Indulgence in Alcohol Foes of Good Health.

Overeating is the curse of the American people. An excess of food distends the capillaries with blood; capillary resistance is increased, with stretching of the arteries and consequent damage to the walls.

The successful business man of florid type, who works all day, drinks from three to seven whiskies, is proud of his physical development and boasts that for more than twenty years he had never had a doctor, is sometimes astounded when his application for life insurance is rejected because of palpable arteries, beginning heart hypertrophy and high blood pressure.

People should be taught that at least twice a year they should be carefully examined by a doctor who has the time to go through a systematic examination. For those who cannot get out of doors exercise in the room with the windows open must take the place of out of door sports. As a tonic or invigorator the cold or cool bath in the morning on arising can be highly recommended, but it is folly to urge it on one to whom it is distasteful or on one who does not feel a comfortable glow or reaction after it.

The use or nonuse of alcohol in advanced life has been the subject of so voluminous a controversy, that each man must dogmatically express his own opinion. My personal conviction is that alcohol is an entirely unnecessary addition to the diet of any individual in health, although it may be needed in sickness.—By Charles Edward Nammack, M. D., J. D., Surgeon of New York Police.

That did not suit Italy, Baron Fava, the Italian minister, was recalled and diplomatic relations between this country and Italy were severed. After the first heat of resentment had passed, negotiations were resumed, and we settled by the payment of $25,000 indemnity to the families of the victims and expressing our regret to the Italian Government.

Attention, Mayor Curley!

(From the Baltimore American)

No more interesting suggestion has been brought out for the training of the citizenship to arms, short of the wide proposition for universal service, than the suggestion that the four thousand employees at the City Hall be given an hour's drill a day in the manual of arms under the direction of a West Point officer duly delegated for the purpose.

It is believed that Mayor Preston, so far from offering objections, would heartily cooperate with the movement. It is one that should take speedy and tangible shape. Baltimore has always been a center for American patriotism and at no time more than the present has there been cause with more readiness to answer the call of the country.

The Baltimore plan, if adopted, would be followed by the municipalities, and thus there would be in training a vast army of citizens unidentified with the regular militia.

Mobilize For Munition Supply

(From the Manufacturers Record)

Europe's war has demonstrated, as never before, that henceforth war is science and machinery against science and machinery. It is no longer, to the extent it was in the past, man-power against man-power. Men are still essential, but the men who are the best equipped with the highest development of mechanics and the work of scientist will produce the largest results. It was not until England created a Minister of Munitions and threw upon him the responsibility of organizing the whole munition industry of the country that England's soldiers were able to match in effectiveness their enemies who had been supplied in advance with an abundance of munitions. The energy that Lloyd George threw into the creation of a munition industry saved the whole situation.

Whether this country becomes engaged in war or not—and so long as war lasts in Europe we shall not be free from danger on that point—it is almost essential to national welfare that there should be created a department of munitions, absolutely untrammeled by any other department of the Government. The establishment of a bureau in some other department would not meet the emergency. A department co-equal in responsibility to that of any other cabinet position should be created immediately, and to the head of this department President Wilson should call one of the ablest iron and steel executives of the country, absolutely without regard to whether he is a Democrat or Republican. To such a position as this President Wilson, in view of the needs of the country, would have a right to ask any man, however responsible his present position, may be, to retire from it in order to accept an appointment as head of a munitions department. To this work, so vitally essential to the nation should be called some outstanding man who has created and managed vast industries and brought forth the largest results.

Without detracting in the slightest from the work that is being done or may be done by present members of the cabinet, it is a well-known fact that no member of the cabinet has had the experience in vast business operations in connection with iron and steel and kindred interests as have men at the head of our leading steel industries. As creators of business, as managers who have demonstrated an amazing efficiency in the handling of great enterprises, these men are a type of those upon whom the country has a right to call. In this hour of need, suppose Judge Quay or some man of his standing were called to such a task. What confidence would he inspire throughout the whole nation, and the whole world would know that we meant to be ready for the most emergencies of the future!

Modest Boston

(From the Attleboro Sun)
Boston goes ahead, merrily with dreams of what a fine 1920 world's fair it will have. All it now needs is the assurance of state or nation that the bills will be paid, and the agreement of the public on the idea that something that happened at Plymouth can be best celebrated at Boston as a matter of business advantage for that city.

DR. FRANK CHAPMAN
THEODORE D. ROBINSON

That there are 26,000,000 cats in the United States, one to every four persons, is the assertion of Dr. Frank Chapman of the American Museum of Natural History, and acting on that Theodore Douglas Robinson, nephew of Colonel Roosevelt and member of the lower house of the legislature of New York, has introduced a bill, which if it becomes a law, will require every owner of a cat in New York state to pay a license of 75 cents a year. Cats, according to Dr. Chapman, every year do damage to the sum of $100,000,000 to the farmers of the Mississippi valley. They eat so many wild birds that the cinch bugs thrive and thus eat the crops. The total damage caused by cats every year is declared to be $1,200,000,000.

BERLIN CLAIMS SOME ADVANCE

Repell English Attacks on the Somme and Take a Few Prisoners.

(Special to The Herald)
Berlin, via Sayville, Feb. 21.—Two hundred persons, mostly Roumanians, refugees, were killed and about 150 were injured in a train wreck near Chirnecha in northern Roumania, says the Overseas News Agency today. This information is attributed to a dispatch in the Russian newspaper Slovo. The train jumped the track and fire broke out in the telescoped cars.

Letters from the People

Editor Herald:

In last night's issue you printed a communication signed "Pore-Side" in which he condemned the movement by the citizens of the town for trying to express a desire to help select the men who will have the spending of their tax money for the coming year.

"Pore-Side" evidently thinks that every person who does not agree with him is in the wrong, or can it be that "Pore-Side" is at the present time holding office and finds the idea of being ousted, very disagreeable.

The writer is very much interested in this movement for a good town government, and if being interested in bettering the town classes him a "renegade," he stands convicted as such.

For my own part, I am not a candidate for any office, and do not think that any of the gentlemen identified with the movement are either looking for office, or in any way trying to benefit themselves.

Will "Pore-Side" tell over his name if, because the citizens of the town show a desire to have a say in the selection of the town officers that it means that they desire to kill a man politically.

Will he tell over his name why a town this size should conduct a town election along national lines when there is nothing in common between the two?

"Pore-Side" speaks as though there was an organized movement to "assassinate politically" one man. I do not believe this, as I have heard no such desire expressed by anyone.

The meeting mentioned, gives every man in the town a chance to attend and help select the names of the candidates, is that unfair?

"Pore-Side" evidently is trying to bring ill will into this matter, and that is wrong, for every man is entitled to his opinion and should vote as he thinks.

I would like to have "Pore-Side" write more on this subject, and sign his name. A fair discussion of the subject would hurt no one.

Respectfully yours,
J. P. SUGRUE.

Discard Fast Day.

To the editor:—
In the evening papers tonight it is announced that Governor Keyes has appointed April 19 to be observed as Fast Day in New Hampshire. If we must have a holiday at this time of the year why not have it a holiday in name as well as in reality. Fast Day has been anything but a fast day for years, its purpose is forgotten by the people, and its name, as its memory has been, should be thrown to the discard.

Several years ago the State of Maine discontinued the observance of Fast Day as it had become a holiday for different, than for which it was intended. If we must have a holiday in April why not celebrate Patriots' Day as do Maine and Massachusetts?

New Hampshire has been the butt of New England newspapers for the past few years for keeping Fast Day on its statute books. The state press should take up the fight, if not, others will, and suggest to some of the legislators to frame a bill to abolish Fast Day in place of some of the foolish bills such as taxing bachelors, tearing booths out of cafes, licensing cats, and licensing fishermen. Fast Day amounts to nothing, and it is a joke throughout the state and the section of the country.

ALL DEPENDS ON AUSTRIA

President Expects They Will Abide by Decision in the Ancona Case.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Whether the United States severs diplomatic relations with Austria-Hungary depends altogether on the character of the reply to Ambassador Penfield's inquiry regarding the attitude of the diet monarchy today toward the German submarine campaign.

What the U. S. wants to know is whether Austria proposes to abide by the assurances given the U. S. after the sinking of the Ancona and Persin. These assurances were interpreted by the state department that Austria would conform to the rules of the international law in the submarine campaign.

Specifically it was understood that Austria-Hungary would not sink vessels in or out of the war zone without warning and without taking all available means for saving human life.

OSBORNE TALKED TO LEGISLATORS

Big Crowd at Representative
Hall When Prison Reformer
Tells of Work.

Concord, Feb. 20.—Representative hall was filled to the doors tonight when Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing prison and noted prison reformer, spoke of prison management in the past and at the present time. He was sorry he was unable to give his impressions of the New Hampshire State prison, but he hoped to visit the institution before leaving the city.

Education was the only method which could possibly be adopted to take care of prisoners and the famous warden cited many instances at Sing Sing where this had worked out. Through this means, common sense could be driven into their heads, something impossible by the old method of force.

He urged the formation of a prisoners' welfare league which had to do with the men after they had left the institutions. By this method the education system started in prison could be continued.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. George H. Reed, of the Prisoners' Aid Association.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results From an Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach, decays or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyper-acidity, meaning there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescent and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the acid-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus permit a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithin and sodium by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

NAVY YARD NOTES

Looking for Recruits

A chief machinist of the U. S. Navy has been visiting some of the large industrial plants in and about Boston during the past week, seeking recruits for the industrial branch of the naval reserve.

In the event of war there would be dire need for a great number of expert machinists and the naval officials expect the trained workmen in the big machine establishments, situated up and down the Atlantic seaboard will fill the gap.

Among the plants visited for recruiting purposes are the Sturtevant Blower Works in Hyde Park, the Mead-Morris plant in South Boston both of which are controlled by ex-Governor E. N. Foss, and the Becker Company. All these plants now manufacture machinery for warfare and munition equipment.

Fighting to Cut the Rate

Information in navy circles has it that the navy department is engaged in vigorous work to have a cut made in the water rate for Portsmouth navy yard.

Osborne at Portland

Thomas Mott Osborne, ex-warden of Sing Sing prison who lately conducted an investigation of prison life at the local yard, spoke before a large crowd at the First Universalist church in Portland on Sunday night.

Will Continue Ranger

Admiral William S. Benson, chief of naval operations, notified Senator Lodge of Massachusetts today that the navy department would not demand the return of the U. S. S. Ranger in the event of a general naval mobilization. The department will continue the Ranger in service as a training ship, according to Admiral Benson.

THE UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING

Would Be Made Popular If Enlistment Period Was Abolished and Training Done in Field.

The Universal Service bill is not receiving the publicity that it deserves, like all schemes whose success depends upon misrepresentation. It always thrives best in the darkness and daylight is fatal. If this bill were to be brought out in the open where all might see it and recognize it for what it is an attempt by the military caste in this country to frighten us into selling our young men into slavery for the exploitation of their own aristocracy, for there is a military aristocracy in this country, and it is bolstered up by all that this traitorous measure would be defeated.

Instead of attempting to militarize America and to bring to America the ideals of the present military aristocracy, why not Americanize our present institutions and bring it to the ideals of America?

When you have brought the military system in harmony with the things American, you will find a different attitude toward it and no necessity for such drastic measures as compulsory or universal service.

The American people are not pusillanimous. They have not lost their military virtue. They need no systems bolstered up by courts, jails and military consularies to bring them to a proper preparation for national defense.

Our present military institution violates some of our best American traditions. Purge it of the distasteful things, make it businesslike, adopt in it accepted American methods, and you will find thousands of willing men and more than you can take care of for military training. They are not willing, however, to enter it as it now stands. I interpret it as a protest against our methods and not as any indication that American manhood is on the decline. Our military institution is not an American development. It remains substantially unchanged, since it was imported at the beginning of our government from England and continental Europe, from countries where there were two classes of men—gentlemen and common men. The officers came from the gentleman class; the enlisted men represent the common class. The system itself such a social structure but it does not fit America. There is only one class of men here—except in the military establishment.

The law recognizes two separate and distinct classes of men in our military service. They are absolutely separate and distinct. There is a line of cleavage between them. Pride and self-respect are the best elements of military character. Caste crushes them both. Napoleon destroyed caste because it injured the business. The impulse which the French revolution gave the French army has never reached the American regular establishment.

There was no caste in the Confederate Army nor the citizen army of the U. S. in the sixties. Why breed it in barracks armies to serve as a model for citizen soldiery?

The thing above all others which prevents men from entering the military service is the oath of enlistment. It is an oath of bondage. Any other employer who contracted with men on this basis would be guilty of peonage—a felony under the law of the nation which practices it itself. I found men unwilling to subscribe such an oath. It is not fair to men who are not familiar with military service to ask them to enter into such an agreement, and it is not necessary. There is an instinct in a young man which inspires an ambition to be a soldier, and plenty of men are willing and anxious to be of service if it can only be done in an honorable and respectful way. Witness the man who went to Plattsburg—but they are not willing to be branded as men of a lower class or in time of peace to subscribe to an oath of bondage.

There is another subtle about military training. It does not require years to train a soldier. The individual instruction is simple. It can be done in weeks and with the proper machinery can be developed in less time than any army can cross the ocean. It was done in the volunteer regiments which went to the Philippines in '99. Nobody there ever discounted the work of volunteers. It was done at Plattsburg in a month. To cook, to march, to move to move is not an American development. The officers came from the gentleman class; the enlisted men represent the common class. The system itself such a social structure but it does not fit America. OUCH! LAME BACK. RUB LUMBAGO OR BACKACHE AWAY

Rub pain right out with small trial bottle of old, penetrating "St. Jacob's Oil."

Kidneys cause Backache? Not they have no nerves, therefore cannot cause pain. Listen! Your backache is caused by lumbago, sciatica or a strain, and rubbing "St. Jacob's Oil." Rub it right on your painful back, and instantly the soreness, stiffness and lameness disappears. Don't stay crippled! Get a small trial bottle of "St. Jacob's Oil" from your druggist and lumber up. A moment after it is applied you'll wonder what became of the backache or lumbago pain.

Rub old honest "St. Jacob's Oil" whenever you have sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprains as it is absolutely harmless and don't burn the skin.

From column of march into line of fight, to dig, to shoot, to give first aid treatment—these are the salient points of a real soldier's instruction. Yet they are not features practiced in the life of the barracks.

The art of living afield and the art of handling men afield is not learned in the barracks. Compare your mental picture of life conditions at barracks with your mental picture of life in the trenches, or anywhere in Europe today, or life in the armies here in the sixties. Can you see any similarity?

The barracks life in idleness impairs the usefulness of the man for the soldier or any other business. It atrophies the talents of its officers. It accustoms all to things not pertinent to the real soldier business, and trains men in the wrong habits. It untrains men or overtrains them. Few officers can stand many years of this so-called training and preserve their usefulness. Grant, Sherman, and Jackson had but few years of this training. Lee, J. E. Johnston, Longstreet, Hood and Stewart were young men who had received but little of it. Forrest, Hampton and Gordon were citizens and had none of it. It is a significant thing how many of our effective officers of both armies of our Civil War fell into these four classes: First officers who had a few years service in the regular army and part of that in the war in Mexico and then went into civil life; second, those who, while they remained on the pay-roll were staff officers and acquired this so-called training; third, young men who had been in but a few years when the war began, and fourth, men who had always been civilians when the war began—and how few of those who had spent their lives in the barracks arose to the occasion.

Summing up the best that Universal Service could do would be to turn out each year one half a million broken spirited men ashamed of themselves, of their uniforms and of their service, self acknowledged members of an inferior caste, to mean spirited to be depended upon in time of danger, for whose recognition on uniform laws are passed compelling caterers of public amusement to serve them under a penalty of five hundred dollars.

Opposed to this abolition of the caste system would immediately bring to the service of the Government every normal healthy young man in the nation making an army of Sir Galahad, limited in numbers only by the convenience of the Government. Efficient, self reliant, proud of their service, respected by the community and absolutely to be depended in any crisis.

Philadelphia, Feb. 19.—If women are to continue in wearing the short skirt, women's shoes will continue to go up—in the direction of the knees, and up in price of course.

The short skirt peril, the war menace and the leather shortage were all discussed informally at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania Shoe Retailers' Association here today and it was frankly admitted by dealers that there is no immediate prospect of the shoe prices taking a plunge on the sliding scale.

KEENE MAN U-BOAT VICTIM

Frank Wood Was on a British Ship Sunk by Submarine; Boat Crew Shelled.

London, Feb. 20.—The Norwegian collier Dalbeattie, from Glasgow to Gibraltar was sunk by a submarine on Saturday. Two Americans were on board her. They were John Guerra of Los Angeles and Frank Wood of Keene, N. H. The latter is suffering from bronchitis, aggravated by his exposure of 12 hours in the ship's boat.

The Dalbeattie was a vessel of 1,327 tons. She was bound from Glasgow to Gibraltar when she was destroyed 20 miles off Fastnet.

It is declared that the collier was shelled while the crew was taking to the boats.

Consul Frost Reports Crew was Shelled While Leaving Ship.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Consul Frost cabled the state department today that two native Americans were aboard the Dalbeattie when it was sunk by shell fire last Saturday. The dispatch follows:

"Norwegian steamship Dalbeattie, 819 tons, coal, Glasgow to Gibraltar, sunk 7 a. m. 17th by shellfire, 30 miles off Fastnet. Carried neither gun nor wireless. Stopped engines upon first shot but was shelled without cause while abandoning ship. No injuries, no offer of aid. Weather heavy; swells, light wind, clear sky, boats rescued 1.30 a. m., 18th after burning flares.

"Two native Americans, Frank Wood, John Guerra, of whom, former is in hospital at Sehill, acute bronchitis, contacted prior to disaster, but aggravated by exposure.

"Am mailing affidavit from Master and Guerra."

Young Wood Well Known in Keene
Keene, Feb. 20.—Frank Wood, one of the two Americans on the Norwegian collier Dalbeattie, sunk off Fastnet is a member of a well known Keene family, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Wood of Taylor street.

Frank, who is 20 years of age, left her last summer, and it is believed he shipped on the Dalbeattie recently.

Fred H. Wood, the young man's father is well known as he is a traveling man, representing a manufacturing firm which turns out farming implements.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Wood said tonight that they had heard nothing from their son directly, but described him as a lad of adventurous disposition who might well be attracted by the hazards of the submarine zone.

London, Feb. 20.—The occupation by two Italian battalions of Konitza, in western Greece near the Albanian border, is reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Athens, which says this announcement has been made officially. The Greek authorities at Konitza are reported to have withdrawn southward to Janina.

ARREST TWO FOR MURDER OF MAN

BODY OF ITALIAN FOUND ON TRACKS AT WORCESTER BY ENGINE CREW.

Worcester, Feb. 20.—The body of an Italian, covered with stab wounds, the head beaten in with a club, was found early today lying across the Boston & Albany railroad tracks. Later the police arrested two Italians in a tenement at 13 Norfolk street, whom they charged with the murder. The dead man lived at 7 Norfolk street.

The murdered man is believed to be Michele Aiello. The men arrested gave the names of Carmine Cosehmano and Dominic Toscano.

The murder is believed to have resulted from a quarrel over a bottle of wine in the tenement occupied by Cosehmano and Toscano. Bloodstains on the floor and walls of the bedroom and a large jack-knife gave evidence that a fight had preceded the murder.

Cosehmano and Toscano denied guilt. Both were engaged in washing out bloodstains in the floor when the police entered the tenement.

The body of Aiello was found by Oliver J. Boncher, engineer, and Geo. B. Frost, fireman of a train that was passing over the tracks where the body was laid.

The police were notified and were to the house at 13 Norfolk street where able to follow tracks through the snow. They arrested Carmine Cosehmano and Dominic Toscano, who they claim, were found trying to wash bloodstains from the walls and floors.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

DARKENS BEAUTIFULLY AND RE-
STORES ITS NATURAL COLOR AND LUSTRE AT ONCE.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER EN- LISTS VOLUNTEERS.

Inspires Movie Actors to Become Real Soldiers.

President Wilson's daughter has all unconsciously brought about the formation of a volunteer regiment, as spectacular as Col. Roosevelt's famous "Rough Riders" which the country may count upon in case of emergency.

This regiment is composed of motion picture actors in Universal City, San Fernando, California. The 6,000 actor inhabitants include hundreds of dare-devil men ideally equipped to become soldiers—experts with guns, at home in saddle or camp, accustomed to danger and hardship.

The daughter of the President, with her husband, Secretary of the Treasury William McAdoo, made a trip to Universal City recently, and witnessed the filming of a Drama, "Won by Gril" in which powerful Neal Hart displayed his skill with a gun and also had a tremendous struggle with six men. So realistic was the fighting in this scene that Mrs. McAdoo was fearful lest Hart and several of the six huskies who attacked him should be injured.

After the scene was over she remarked that there was exceptional soldier material in Universal City. If the country ever needed volunteers. One of the actors overheard the remark and was inspired by it to recommend the formation of a volunteer organization among the actors.

Neal Hart and others took up the idea with enthusiasm. Steps were at once taken to effect an organization. Francis Ford, who is taking the leading part in "The Purple Mask" serial, was proposed as captain but has been forced to decline because he was too busy to take over the many duties and responsibilities entailed. The regiment will hold a meeting soon and elect a permanent captain.

Grace Cunard and Louise, Lovely, two of the Universal stars, have taken preliminary steps toward forming a corps of nurses for the regiment in case of active service.

At the forthcoming show, Tuesday, March 6th, will be officially known as "New Hampshire Day." In the big cities of New Hampshire plans are now under way for a big caravan of touring cars to make the journey to the Boston show. In Manchester, most of the dealers and many private owners of cars will go over the road together to Boston. Over 50 cars will probably leave Manchester, while Nashua, Keene, Concord, Portsmouth, and other cities will also send a delegation. If the weather is favorable, most of these visitors will journey over the road in their cars. Manager Campbell is now making special arrangements for the parking of the cars when they arrive in Boston.

Over 300,000 visitors are expected at the Automobile Show in Mechanics Building and Horticultural Hall. Of this number, fully half will come from distances from beyond the limits of the great city. Every hotel in the city will be filled to capacity, and the restaurants anticipate a harvest.

An idea of the colossalness of the show can be obtained from the fact that the exhibits are valued at nearly $2,000,000 and over 7,000 dealers and agents will actively participate in it. When the doors of the show close March 10th, nearly $1,000,000 worth of business will be marked up to the credit of the exhibitors. Over $100,000 will be expended by exhibitors and the show management in advertising.

The Automobile Salon, which will be staged in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel, will open Monday, March 6th. It will be devoted exclusively to exhibits of high-grade cars, which in most instances will have enclosed bodies. A number of foreign cars and some of the very best cars manufactured in this country will be shown. This show is separate from the big show, in Mechanics Building and Horticultural Hall, although it is under the same management.

The affair was one to be long remembered by one and all present, especially the pleasing vocal program contributed by Mr. O'Leary, Joseph Belmont and others. Walter Leach favored with several recitations, and the Scotch songs given by Mrs. Mary South added much to the evening's entertainment.

A repast of salads, rolls, olives, ice cream, cake and coffee was served.

When you examine a Packard piano you don't see all its merit. When you look at a man or woman you don't always see Honesty. But in the case of the Packard whether or not you ever have seen or heard of this particular make of piano, the Honesty is There. It's in every part from top hinges to casters.

There are many places in the structure of pianos where Dishonesty can be built in, likewise Honesty. Both are Invisible. There is as much Invisible Honesty in the Packard Piano as there is apparent Honesty in any piano. Buy the Packard and "Play Safe."
